

...may 29, 2010...

a flit - a whiz - a zip - above and through - an iridescent flash - then six - then two - ruby-throated emeralds and golds zoom in and out and past at hyper-speeds - hummingbirds - each chasing each away with motor wings vibrating to a blur - darting the back and forth and up and down then hovering a moment of between - long beaks sip the yellow irises like artists poised within the here-and-there - twirling their kaleidoscopic dance inside a world of the never still blinking between probabilities then vanishing as if they never were.

©pamela swanson
www.poetpam.com